ON THE HUNT FOR NEW SHOOTING AND HUNTING GEAR?

If you're thinking about buying new gear for the shooting range, or for that next hunting trip here are some tips to select the right product for your needs.

CHOOSE A HOLSTER THAT'S RIGHT FOR YOU

Since your holster is the interface between your gun and your body, it is unquestionably a vital piece of gear. A poorly designed or ill-suited holster could lead to discomfort, a compromised draw stroke, and even to the loss of your gun. A quality concealed carry holster must strike a balance between concealment and accessibility, but must also be comfortable enough to wear.

Concealed carry holsters don't just have to hold your weapon securely; they need to help make it as inconspicuous as possible. That means bulky flaps, padding and carriage systems are out; low-profile is in. There's also a limit to what a holster can do for concealment, and your choice of weapon is going to make a big difference.

YOUR HOLSTER IS ONLY AS GOOD AS THE BELT IT'S CARRIED ON

One of the most overlooked parts of gearing up for concealed carry is your belt choice. Far too often we see people using low quality belts that they picked up off the clearance rack. Rarely is a department store belt sufficient for supporting your firearm and it will lead to your gun sagging and your belt drooping. Grabbing a proper belt that is meant for carrying a firearm is important for a host of reasons, but most importantly it's going to keep that firearm exactly where you want it.

This EDC Brown Leather Belt is the perfect belt for blending in. The last thing you need is someone figuring you are carrying protection by outing your belt. This belt not only looks great and blends in but also gives you the comfort that is lacking with traditional belts

KEEP CALM AND DRINK COFFEE

What more can one say, dealing with a difficult situation one needs that caffeine boost to get through it.

The Natshoot Tumbler keeps your drink piping hot-or ice-cold when summer returns.

THESE BOOTS ARE MADE FOR ADVENTURE

The boots you wear can make or break your hunt. Make the wrong choice and it will cost you dearly.

So many of us walk in to a store and buy the boots that look cool, regardless of what they were designed to do. You need to establish the when, where and why of your hunt. Asking the right questions before you buy will save time and tons of headache when you're hunting or hiking.

GUIDE TO TACTICAL PANTS

You don't have to be going on a tactical mission to wear them, and you don't have to be Chuck Norris for them to have their use. In fact, built to withstand the elements, and the abuse of wear, tear, tactical pants are a solid choice for any person on the hunt for adventure.

Tactical Pants need to be practical because, in the end, you want them to perform as intended. The pants should not only to cover your body, but to help you perform at your best. This means the design of the pants should be comfortable give you freedom of movement, and a layout of pockets to carry essential items.

GUIDE TO BODY ARMOUR

In such case a body Armour will perform just like a seat belt in your car, reduce the severity of an injury and potentially even save lives.

A bulletproof vest, also known as a ballistic vest or a bullet-resistant vest, is an item of body Armour that helps absorb the impact and reduce or stop penetration to the torso from firearm-fired projectiles.

A GUIDE TO TACTICAL VEHICLE SAFES

A good vehicle gun safe that has a compact design with all the right security features is what you should be looking for.

If you conceal carry a lot and need to go somewhere where guns are not allowed, your only option is to leave the weapon inside the car. Now, it's not safe to just stash your gun inside the glove box or in the center console and locking the car. Instead, you should get yourself a vehicle gun safe and put your firearm inside it.

The Pangolin vehicle safe is a high security product engineered for providing unparalleled protection against theft of handguns from motor vehicles whilst travelling or during unattended parking.

- Permanent or portable
- Available for one or two handguns
- Independently tested and verified
- Rugged and wear resistant finish
- Clamshell all-steel design
